

STATE TO PROBE DRY RAID SHOOTING

DOVER MAYOR TO FACE OUSTER PROCEEDINGS BEFORE COOPER

TO APPEAR TUESDAY
AFTER CHARGES ARE
FILED BY BEETHAM

Seven Charges Filed;
Groh Denies All; Is
Under Bond

COLUMBUS, O., March 28.—P. J. Groh, crusading mayor of Dover has been cited to appear before Governor Cooper at 2 p. m. Tuesday, to face removal from office.

In a report filed with Governor Cooper at 4:45 p. m., yesterday State Probation Commissioner Rupert R. Beetham charged:

1. That Groh is guilty of misfeasance in office.
2. Guilty of nonfeasance in office.
3. Guilty of malfeasance in office.
4. Accepted a $50 bribe from a state dry agent.
5. Failed to enforce the dry laws.
6. Knowingly permitted rum-running through Dover.
7. Was involved in rum running.

Groh has made a sweeping denial of the charges. He was arrested in Dover last week after a state dry agent, posing as a rum runner, claimed he paid Groh $50 for "protection."

The mayor has been arrested and is at liberty under $10,000 bond pending action by the grand jury. Mayor Groh recently led a crusade against Sunday movies in Dover, and in the past he has been known as the nemesis of drunkards and bootleggers.

Commissioner Beetham said he not only has evidence that Mayor Groh accepted a bribe but that he would charge the official with being "on the inside" of rum-running activities in Dover.

Beetham revealed that suspicion first attached to the mayor following the breakdown of a truck-load of liquor in Harrison County.

He said the liquor subsequently was traced to Dover and that the mayor was involved.

It was not known here today whether Groh will answer Beetham's summons.

STUDENT INJURED IN FALL AT SCHOOL

COLUMBUS, O., March 28.—Russell B. McNeil, 23, junior student in the college of arts, Ohio State University, and son of Dr. R. C. McNeil, of Kenton, O., was in a serious condition in University Hospital here today from injuries received when he fell over a balustrade in the university administration building.

Young McNeil fell fifteen feet. Walter Penn, a building employee, who was standing nearby, said the youth apparently did not see the balustrade and walking against it lost his balance and fell. He was removed to the hospital and physicians, after an examination, said he suffered a fractured arm and a brain concussion.

McNeil has been suffering from eye trouble and this apparently obscured his vision. He is one of the outstanding student leaders on the campus. In addition to being an honor student he is a business manager of the Sun Day, business manager of the Scarlet Mask, president of the university Y. M. C. A. and a member of Sigma Chi fraternity.

CHIEF OF POLICE ENDS CONTROVERSY

NEWCOMERSTOWN, March 28.—Hostilities between Mayor Marion Mercer and the city council have ended with the resignation of Police Chief John Blatt, it was announced today.

Members of council recently demanded that Mayor Mercer remove Blatt or resign. Blatt, made chief several years ago, resigned just before he was to be given a hearing on charges of drinking. Then when his successor, John Fischer, died, he was reappointed by Mayor Mercer. The mayor announced today that John Blatt had been named the new chief.

KELLOGG YIELDS HIS OFFICE TO SECRETARY OF STATE STIMSON

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg will relinquish his office today to Henry L. Stimson after four years and twenty-four days at the head of the state department.

Chief Justice Taft will administer the oath to Stimson at 5 p. m. today. Stimson will begin his new duties when the department opens for business tomorrow.

In obtaining a member of the Supreme Court to administer the oath, the precedent of Kellogg's entering office is continued. Kellogg sails from New York Friday for a European vacation after which he will resume law practice as head of his old firm in St. Paul.

PLENTY OF GAS BUT THINKS NOT

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Mar. 28.—Martin Jensen, flying above Long Island today in an attempt to set a solo endurance record, may fail because he has twice as much gasoline as he thinks he has.

At 7 a. m. today Jensen dropped a note saying he had only fifty gallons of fuel in his rear tank—enough to last only five hours. His wife, Mrs. Margaret Jensen, who spent last night at the field, said, however, that he had only fifty gallons in the rear tank.

She planned to go up in another plane during the morning to signal Jensen not to come down on the assumption that he had only fifty gallons.

Jensen started his flight at 6:01:35 a. m. yesterday. The record, held by the late Lieut. Royal V. Thomas, is thirty-five hours and twenty-five minutes.

MARSHALL BILL HITS AT SALARY BUYERS; SENT TO GOVERNOR

Limits Interest On Small Loans; Passes
House

COLUMBUS, O., March 28.—The Marshall bill to end "salary buying" in Ohio was sent to Governor Cooper today for his signature.

The bill, previously approved by the senate, was passed in the house by a record vote. Not a single vote was recorded against it.

"This bill will put the 'salary buyers' out of business," Rep. Grant Ward, Columbus, told the house. "It will end the operations of these human jackals who have been collecting as high as 240 per cent interest annually on small loans made to working men and women."

The bill would limit to three per cent a month the interest that can legally be charged on small loans. It puts the "salary buyers" on the same basis as other loan agencies and limits them to the same rate of interest, three per cent a month. It was introduced by Senator L. L. Marshall, Cleveland, and had the backing of the better business commission of Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo, Columbus, and other cities.

Ward, in speaking for the bill in the house, charged that "a most vicious lobby," has been opposing the bill "under cover" and had resorted to deceptive propaganda in an attempt to deceive members concerning the merits of the measure.

He warned that, to prevent any "innocent or willful attempt" to kill the bill by amendments, he would demand a roll call vote on every amendment offered.

His warning was either uncalled for or else was completely effective, for not a single amendment was submitted, not a word was said against the bill, and every member voted "yes."

LAZARUS COMPANY MAY ENTER MERGER

COLUMBUS, O., March 28.—Merger of the F. and R. Lazarus Co. and two large eastern retail organizations is being negotiated, it was announced today.

Letters outlining a plan of affiliation of the local firm with William Filene Sons and Co. of Boston and Abraham and Straus, Inc., of Brooklyn, through a joint holding company, have been sent to common stockholders of the Lazarus Company.

Abraham and Straus, Inc., has annual sales of nearly $25,000,000 while the Filene firm which operates the Filene store and the R. H. White Company store has total sales of nearly $50,000,000 annually in Boston.

The Lazarus interests which own the John Shillito Co., Cincinnati, as well as the local store, reported annual sales of about $18,000,000.

Other stores also may be added to this group it was indicated.

ACTION IN SINKING RUM SHIP HINGES ON ORIGIN OF CHASE

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The next move in the controversy over the sinking of the Canadian rum smuggler, the I'm Alone by United States coast guard guns far off the American shore appeared today to depend upon determining the exact spot where the chase originated.

The British consul general's report to the Canadian legation received yesterday from New Orleans said Captain John Randall, of the I'm Alone, placed the position outside the limit established for search and seizure by the 1924 liquor smuggling treaty.

Secretary Kellogg revealed the treasury had not informed the state department where the chase began. Secretary of Treasury Mellon's original statement said the I'm Alone was first accosted within twelve miles of the American shore, which would be well within the treaty limit.

Meantime the problem has become further complicated by a report of the French consul at New Orleans to the French embassy. Leon Mangay, seaman, who died when the I'm Alone was sunk, was a French citizen.

Interested diplomats apparently were pleased at reports from New Orleans that federal authorities had released the crew of the I'm Alone on their own recognizance and had granted $500 bail to Randall. This was contrasted with the drastic action of the coast guard in sinking the craft and placing her skipper in leg irons while en route to New Orleans.

If investigation supports Randall's contention he was beyond all territorial water limits when first accosted by the coast guard, interested diplomats indicated the federal courts would be left to deal with the case in the expectation the I'm Alone's refusal to surrender would be upheld without diplomatic protest.

ACQUITTAL MAY END FURTHER ACTION IN VOTE FRAUD CASES

Jury Which Freed Three Scored By Attorney

CLEVELAND, O., March 28.—Further prosecution of vote frauds in the August primary in Cuyahoga County for which thirty-three officials have been indicted appeared doubtful today.

Attorney General Gilbert Bettman refused to say what his future policy will be following the crushing blow to the state's case, delivered when a jury freed Chas. Polizzi, John A. Lanese and Leonard Efantini.

The three were charged with stealing votes in a precinct. "I don't know what I am going to do," Bettman said. "I have given three months time to Cuyahoga County."

Raymond J. Kunkle, special assistant to Bettman, said: "We don't know what will be done," and flayed the jury which freed the defendants in the state's last case.

"Such a jury ought to have its picture on the front page of every newspaper with screaming headlines telling the public that they are the kind of people who stand for trickery in their elections," he said.

Bettman and Kunkle were crushed by the defeat while attorneys James C. Connell, Neil Collins and George Disette declared it was a "blow at future prosecutions."

FARM RELIEF PLANS PROGRESS WITHOUT DRAWING INTEREST

Program Is Maturing
Easily; Hoover Silent
On Method

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The farm relief program, to be provided by the coming special session of congress, is gliding along to consummation so easily it is apparently drawing no marked attention inside or outside of congressional circles.

With President Hoover silent, farm organizations pacified, and the plan of the senate agriculture committee to hear big financiers off to a bad start, the agriculture committees of the house and senate are plodding along, hearing redundant witnesses and planning only to repeat the co-operative marketing measure which the majority had agreed ahead of time.

There seems no possibility now Mr. Hoover will lay down any concrete plan inasmuch as he has indirectly informed both committees of his intention to avoid such a declaration. His new Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde will present the administration's views in a general way as soon as he returns from his vacation and his testimony is as much as congressional leaders expect in the way of an endorsement of his bill.

The various farm organizations have agreed the equalization fee is dead and have acquiesced in the movement to pass what the congressional leaders choose for expediency to call "a Hoover bill."

A flurry of activity was promised when the senate committee invited industrial leaders like Henry Ford and J. P. Morgan to lend their assistance. The apparent futility of this effort was indicated when the first two replies to these invitations were declinations.

William Higgins, secretary to Morgan, replied his chief was in Europe and could not accept the invitation. Paul M. Warburg, financier, answered the press of other business required his presence in New York.

Others to be heard from whose declinations are anticipated by committee members include Ford, John D. Rockefeller, Secretary of Treasury Mellon, and Charles M. Schwab.

In the face of this apparently indifferent situation about the problem, prominent during the last presidential campaign, and which has plagued congress for seven years, both the house and senate committee chairman intend to conclude their hearings as soon as possible and prepare the bill they all have passed early in the session, a $300,000,000 co-operative marketing measure drawn by Senator McNary.

ARREST 67 IN VICE RESORTS

ST. LOUIS, O., March 28.—The quietude of Steubenville was shattered again last night and early today as city and county authorities swooped down on alleged vice resorts and arrested sixty-seven persons.

The raids came as a climax to a series of sensational state and federal raids and were extended today as warrants for forty-six alleged prohibition law violators were served.

The federal raids were staged last November in a general clean-up drive. Last night's sortie caught the victims unawares and both the city and county jails were filled.

A dozen squads of raiders started out under the direction of Sheriff William Yost and Police Chief Ross Cunningham. In the first hour of their work the officers raided twelve resorts.

The warrants were issued by County Prosecutor Jesse George and City Solicitor Amanda Strayer on evidence said to have been obtained by under-cover agents.

KILLED BY AUTO
NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Mar. 28.—Mrs. Lydia A. Casbeer, 77, was killed by an automobile last night while she was returning from a Dover revival meeting. The driver of the car was exonerated.

and were planning to make another assault on his chair today.

Friends of the governor, on the other hand, today were actively engaged in efforts to rally recruits to the drooping standard of the governor and planned on their part to make a final attempt to regain firm control of the legislative machinery.

The chief object of the governor is to adjourn the legislature without a date. In the event he fails in this, his energies will be directed toward voting down the impeachment resolution when it comes up for a vote, probably Monday.

The resolution contains nine specific charges of misconduct.

MAY BE IMPEACHED

With lawyers and state legislators meeting at Baton Rouge to draft impeachment proceedings against Governor Huey P. Long of Louisiana, bitter conflict on legislative matters between Long and state representatives has come to a head. A charge read in the legislative chamber that Long had ordered an attack on a state representative precipitated a near riot in which several legislators were bruised.

Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith, who shot Mrs. De King, was reported worse today in a hospital here, his temperature being higher and blood poisoning feared from the wound inflicted by Gerald De King, twelve-year-old son of the Kings, when he saw his mother dying.

It is evident that the De King attorneys are attempting to create a feeling here that I would be prejudiced in handling this case," Carbery said. "I am putting investigation of the case up to the attorney general. I will give him every aid possible and will be governed by what he thinks."

Robert A. Milroy and Albert Kelly, attorneys for the De Kings, also demanded that Boyd Fairclaid, investigator on whose testimony a search warrant was sworn out to raid the De King home, be produced by the state's attorney and questioned under oath.

They said Fairclaid was a "carpetbagger" sleuth and they feared he would flee before being summoned.

Milroy and Kelly continued their search for evidence in an effort to pin charges on Smith.

Milroy called the shooting of Mrs. De King by Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith "legalized murder," and demanded a special grand jury investigation and a special prosecutor.

Milroy and his colleague, Albert J. Kelly, asserted that by re-nouncing the slaying they have found that Mrs. De King could not have been in a position to seize one of her husband's guns as Smith said in contending he shot her in self defense because she was about to shoot him.

Milroy pointed to blood stains on a table cloth and shotgun slug holes in it, as proof that Mrs. De King was shot as she arose from the table, a dozen feet from the prone figure of her husband, Joseph De King, knocked there by the butt of Smith's gun.

The raids occurred Monday night. Mrs. De King was killed, her husband slugged and a dry raider shot by a 12-year-old De King boy.

"That point in itself proves to my satisfaction that Smith's self-defense plea is a hasty alibi," Milroy said. "The wounds in Mrs. De King's stomach range downward. Smith is a tall man and she was but five feet, two inches tall. It is obvious that she was shot as she started to the aid of her husband."

From my own knowledge I can testify that I heard the shot and a scream over the phone. An instant before she had been talking to me. She couldn't have got as far as her husband and left that blood stain on the table cloth," Milroy added.

Smith denounced the prohibition laws, and said they caused much of the present wave of crime. He reiterated his defense that he shot Mrs. DeKing to protect himself.

ATTORNEY GENERAL WILL INVESTIGATE SHOOTING OF WOMAN

Prosecutor Asks Aid;
Defense Charges "Legal Murder"

AURORA, Ill., March 28.—Investigation of the slaying of Mrs. Lillian De King by raiders who invaded her home looking for liquor, was put up to the state attorney general today.

State's Attorney George D. Carbery, aroused by charges of attorneys for the De King family that he was suppressing evidence and delaying investigation, announced that he would call in Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom to take a hand in the investigation and any prosecution that might result.

Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith, who shot Mrs. De King, was reported worse today in a hospital here, his temperature being higher and blood poisoning feared from the wound inflicted by Gerald De King, twelve-year-old son of the Kings, when he saw his mother dying.

STATE TO PROBE DRY RAID SHOOTING

DOVER MAYOR TO FACE OUSTER PROCEEDINGS BEFORE COOPER

TO APPEAR TUESDAY
AFTER CHARGES ARE
FILED BY BEETHAM

Seven Charges Filed;
Groh Denies All; Is
Under Bond

COLUMBUS, O., March 28.—P. J. Groh, crusading mayor of Dover has been cited to appear before Governor Cooper at 2 p. m. Tuesday, to face removal from office.

In a report filed with Governor Cooper at 4:45 p. m., yesterday State Probation Commissioner Rupert R. Beetham charged:

1. That Groh is guilty of misdemeanor in office.
2. Guilty of nonfeasance in office.
3. Guilty of malfeasance in office.
4. Accepted a $50 bribe from a state dry agent.
5. Failed to enforce the dry laws.
6. Knowingly permitted rum-running through Dover.
7. Was involved in rum running.

Groh has made a sweeping denial of the charges. He was arrested in Dover last week after a state dry agent, posing as a rum runner, claimed he paid Groh $50 for "protection."

The mayor has been arrested and is at liberty under $10,000 bond pending action by the grand jury.

Mayor Groh recently led a crusade against Sunday movies in Dover, and in the past he has been known as the nemesis of drunkards and bootleggers.

Commissioner Beetham said he not only has evidence that Mayor Groh accepted a bribe but that he would charge the official with being "on the inside" of rum-running activities in Dover.

Beetham revealed that suspicion first attached to the mayor following the breakdown of a truckload of liquor in Harrison County.

He said the liquor subsequently was traced to Dover and that the mayor was involved.

It was not known here today whether Groh will answer Beetham's summons.

ACTION IN SINKING RUM SHIP HINGES ON ORIGIN OF CHASE

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The next move in the controversy over the sinking of the Canadian rum smuggler, the Im Alone, by United States coast guard guns far off the American shore appeared today to depend upon determining the exact spot where the chase originated.

CLEVELAND, O., March 28.—Further prosecution of vote frauds in the August primary in Cuyahoga County for which thirty-three indictments have been indicted appeared doubtful today.

GRANGE ENDORSE FIRE PROTECTION

Efforts of the Xenia Retail Merchants Association to have the city furnish fire protection to rural districts within a reasonable distance from the city, have won the approval of farming interests, it is learned.

The proposal was taken up with city commission through the intervention of the merchants' organization, and is now being investigated by the commission with regard to its advisability. Greene County Pomona Grange, appreciating the efforts of the merchants association in this matter, sent the following endorsement to I. Friedman, president of the organization:

"We, the members of the Greene County Pomona Grange in session at Xenia, O., March 27, 1929, endorse the movement of the Xenia Retail Merchants to secure fire protection for the rural district adjacent to Xenia and request Xenia city to put this into effect as soon as possible:

Pomona Master: George H. Gordon
Pomona Overseer: William J. Baker
Secretary: Joseph B. Mason
County Deputy: S. H. Shawhan.

ATTORNEY GENERAL WILL INVESTIGATE SHOOTING OF WOMAN

Prosecutor Asks Aid;
Defense Charges "Legal Murder"

AURORA, Ill., March 28.—Investigation of the slaying of Mrs. Lillian De King by raiders who invaded her home looking for liquor, was put up to the state attorney general today.

State's Attorney George D. Carbery, aroused by charges of attorneys for the De King family that he was suppressing evidence and delaying investigation, announced that he would call in Attorney General Oscar E. Carliston to take a hand in the investigation and any prosecution that might result.

Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith, who shot Mrs. De King, was reported worse today in a hospital here, his temperature being higher and blood poisoning feared from the wound inflicted by Gerald De King, twelve-year-old son of the De Kings, when he saw his mother dying.

"It is evident that the De King attorneys are attempting to create a feeling here that I would be prejudiced in handling this case," Carbery said. "I am putting investigation of the case up to the attorney general. I will give him every aid possible and will be governed by what he thinks."

Robert A. Milroy and Albert Kelly, attorneys for the De Kings, also demanded that Boyd Fairclaid, investigator on whose testimony a search warrant was secured out to raid the De King home, be produced by the state's attorney and questioned under oath.

They said Fairclaid was a "carpetbagger" sleuth and they feared he would flee before being summoned.

Milroy and Kelly continued the search for evidence in an effort to pin charges on Smith.

Milroy called the shooting of Mrs. De King by Deputy Sheriff Roy Smith "legalized murder," and demanded a special grand jury in investigation and a special prosecutor.

Milroy and his colleague, Albert J. Kelly, asserted that by releasing the slaying they have found that Mrs. De King could not have been in a position to seize one of her husband's guns as Smith said in contending he shot her in self defense because she was about to shoot him.

Milroy pointed to blood stains on a table cloth and shotgun slug holes in it, as proof that Mrs. De King was shot as she arose from the table a dozen feet from the prone figure of her husband, Joseph De King, knocked there by the butt of Smith's gun.

The raids occurred Monday night. Mrs. De King was killed by her husband slugged and a drifter shot by a 12-year-old De King boy.

"That point in itself proves that the slaying of Mrs. De King was a self defense," Milroy said. "The wounds in Mrs. De King's stomach range downward Smith is a tall man and she was but five feet, two inches tall, it is obvious that she was shot as she started to the aid of her husband."

"From my own knowledge I can testify that I heard the shot and a scream over the phone. An instant before she had been talking to me. She couldn't have got as far as her husband and left the blood stain on the table cloth Milroy added.

Smith denounced the prohibitive laws, and said they caused much of the present wave of crime. He reiterated his defense that he shot Mrs. De King to protect himself.

ATTORNEYS LOSE IN ACTION TO RECOVER FEES FOR SERVICES

The law firm of L. T. and J. Carl Marshall, this city, lost its suit to recover professional fees in the State Supreme Court Wednesday. The judgments of both the Common Pleas and Appellate Courts of Montgomery County were reversed by the Supreme Court and a verdict was returned for the plaintiff-in-error, Wilbur E. Wolf and Alfred Wolf, Dayton attorneys.

The Marshalls were awarded $1,500 by a jury in Common Pleas Court. The action was brought to collect that amount for services rendered. This verdict was upheld by the appellate court.

In November, 1928, the supreme court overruled a motion to dismiss a petition-in-error, filed by the Xenia lawyers. The Wolfs withdrew from the original trial, claiming prejudice on the part of Judge Patterson.

MRS. MESSENGER IS OHIO D. A. R. OFFICER

Mrs. A. C. Messenger, this city, will be the next state vice-president of the Ohio Daughters of the American Revolution. She was selected for this office at the thirtieth annual conference of that organization in Toledo Wednesday.

Mrs. Walter Lawrence Tobey, Hamilton, wife of a Hamilton newspaper editor, was elected state regent.

EASTER FASHION PARADE

A new season, rich in fashion news, in modes that are really "different" and an inspiration to the selection of an outfit that will reflect the charm of each individual type. Here is to be found apparel in the best phases of the mode, varied, complete and moderately priced.

ENSEMBLES

There is no doubt of the pre-eminence of the ensemble this spring. It appears in many guises—of soft tweeds for sports wear... Of silk or combinations of woolen and silk for the varied occasions of the season. Prices range from

$19.75 to $35.00

Frocks of Plain and Printed Silk

Every outfit must contain at least one frock of Printed Silk. There are so many different styles here that selection resolves itself merely into a matter of individual preference.

$10.00 up

Frocks of Plain Silk Crepe in all the styles smartest for spring are represented. Many of these dresses have scarf collars, others are trimmed with bows or pleated jabots. Some are in the new pastel tones so smart this season. Others are in bright navy, chartreuse, red, green, brown, tan or black.

$10.00 up

Smart Coats In New Spring Styles

Coats take many ways to smartness this spring. Some are trimmed with fur, many are untrimmed, save for bands or insets of the material. All are smart and well tailored.

$19.75 to $69.50

SPORTS COATS UNUSUAL

$16.75 to $89.50

Good looking sports coats for travel or general wear in smart tweeds—some have scarf collars, others long collars, plain or notched.

Hats To Top All Easter Costumes

Felts Visca Bakou

It is a matter of personal taste whether you choose felt or straw this spring. Straws have the pliability of fabrics that are used to create hats that have unusual distinction.

$2.95 up

The Charming Little Gift for Her on Easter

Every mortal woman longs for countless feminine frivolities... for enchanting little furbelows that she would feel it wanton extravagance to buy for herself... but would welcome as a gift.

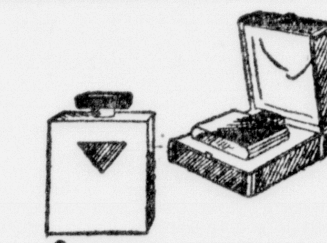

And so, for Easter, when the whole world "dresses up," why not give to Mother, Sister, Wife or Sweetheart something that she'll really love to receive. Something that will make her feel... and look... even prettier.

Easter Posies

An Easter costume without flowers is incomplete—and these have the advantage of blooming long after Easter has passed.

59c to $3.95

A new season, rich in fashion news, in modes that are really "different" and an inspiration to the selection of an outfit that will reflect the charm of each individual type. Here is to be found apparel in the best phases of the mode, varied, complete and moderately priced.

ENSEMBLES

There is no doubt of the pre-eminence of the ensemble this spring. It appears in many guises—of soft tweeds for sports wear... Of silk or combinations of woolen and silk for the varied occasions of the season. Prices range from

$19.75 to $35.00

Frocks of Plain and Printed Silk

Every outfit must contain at least one frock of Printed Silk. There are so many different styles here that selection resolves itself merely into a matter of individual preference.

$10.00 up

Frocks of Plain Silk Crepe in all the styles smartest for spring are represented. Many of these dresses have scarf collars, others are trimmed with bows or pleated jabots. Some are in the new pastel tones so smart this season. Others are in bright navy, chartreuse, red, green, brown, tan or black.

$10.00 up

Smart Coats In New Spring Styles

Coats take many ways to smartness this spring. Some are trimmed with fur, many are untrimmed, save for bands or insets of the material. All are smart and well tailored.

$19.75 to $69.50

SPORTS COATS UNUSUAL

$16.75 to $89.50

Good looking sports coats for travel or general wear in smart tweeds—some have scarf collars, others long collars, plain or notched.

Hats To Top All Easter Costumes

Felts

Visca Bakou

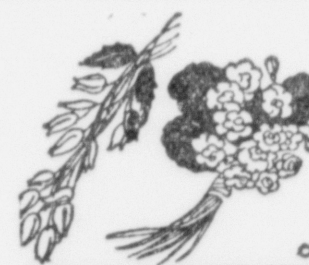

It is a matter of personal taste whether you choose felt or straw this spring. Straws have the pliability of fabrics that are used to create hats that have unusual distinction.

$2.95 up

The Charming Little Gift for Her on Easter

Every mortal woman longs for countless feminine frivolities... for enchanting little furbelows that she would feel it wanton extravagance to buy for herself... but would welcome as a gift.

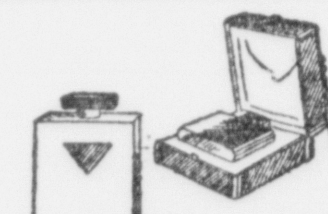

And so, for Easter, when the whole world "dresses up," why not give to Mother, Sister, Wife or Sweetheart something that she'll really love to receive. Something that will make her feel... and look... even prettier.

Easter Posies

An Easter costume without flowers is incomplete—and these have the advantage of blooming long after Easter has passed.

59c to $3.95

New Perfumes

Exquisite perfumes as fresh and delightful as spring flowers in beautiful bottles that are a joy. Priced from

50c to $4.00

BIBLE CLASS PLAY

The Women's Bible Class of the First M. E. Church, met in the church parlors for a social time, Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Mary Cosley gave an interesting talk on her trip to Scotland, telling of the life of Robert Burns and quoted from several of his poems. Mrs. Lester Oglesbee sang several numbers which were very much enjoyed.

Following the talks eight women of the society presented a playlet, "The White Elephant Sale." Those taking part were: Mrs. Delmer Hook, Mrs. Charles Cross, Mrs. Sherwin Spahr, Mrs. John Laycock, Mrs. James Canaday, Mrs. C. R. Stearns, Mrs. Elton Smith, and Mrs. Agnes Hurley. At the close of the playlet light refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. William Green, E. Market St., are announcing the birth of a son, Wednesday morning. The baby has been named Robert Leo.

Always Safe

When your Children Cry for It

Here's relief and comfort for crying, fretful, feverish babies or children that you don't need to urge or command them to take. They love the delicious taste of Fletcher's Castoria. Your doctor will tell you it's absolutely safe, so you can give it as freely and as often as needed to keep your children happy and well. A few drops is all it takes to quiet fretful, feverish, colicky babies; relieve their biliousness; ease on stomach, constipation, etc.; soothe them to sleep in a jiffy. For like disorders in older children, you simply use a little larger dose of the same reliable Fletcher's Castoria. Don't use grown-folks' medicine; with babies or children, specialists say. Ninety per cent of them recommend Fletcher's Castoria; and thirty years of steadily increasing popularity proves they're right. To protect you from imitations, the Fletcher signature is on every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE OLD COVENANT—I will remember my covenant with thee in the days of thy youth, and I will establish unto thee an everlasting covenant, and thou shalt know that I am the Lord.—Ezekiel 16:60, 62.

THE TIE THAT BINDS

As an expression of the community of business interests in Canada and the United States in solving economic problems which apply equally to both countries the Chamber of Commerce of the United States has announced that a delegation from the Canadian Chamber of Commerce will attend the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to be held in Washington, April 29-May 3. The latter organization will be represented by a similar delegation at the meetings of the Canadian Chamber.

This pooling of interests is only a further indication of the effectiveness with which political boundaries can be bridged in carrying on commercial intercourse to mutual advantage. Canada ranks as the best customer of the United States and the United as the best customer of Canada. A list of Canadian and American business concerns with affiliations on both sides of the border compiled by the Department of Foreign Commerce of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, admittedly incomplete, contains more than seven hundred names.

NEW ATTITUDE TOWARD 'BIG BUSINESS'

Whatever else the bull market has done either to change this nation's interests or upset its habits or dislodge its loyalties at least there can be no doubt that it has profoundly altered the attitude of a great mass of American toward "Big Business."

A fabulously rich and prosperous corporation may be an octopus when it is selling gasoline at 22 cents a gallon instead of 17, but it is no octopus when some of its stock, even on margin, is in the hands of the customer who has recently been groaning, says Charles Merz in the April Harpers magazine. In this case it becomes either a benevolent philanthropic institution whose purposes have been greatly misunderstood and whose services to humanity are ridiculously undervalued, or a jolly partner in an admitted hold-up which must not be complained of too vociferously lest Congress come along with an investigation.

It is obvious that at this point we are reckoning with something more formidable than the emergence of a new game or the cultivation of a new romantic literature, and that this change in the attitude of a great mass of Americans toward corporate wealth has contributed vastly to the political conservatism which has been characteristic of this country in recent years. The change is unmistakable, and its sharpness can be measured if we look upon a time less prosperous.

POWER

Dr. George Lawrence Parker reviewing a book by Sir Philip Gibbs, says the greatest thing that has come out of the recent years is the sense of power. Man is on the way to such power that, if he knew how to use it, he might almost control his own destiny. The rub is in his knowing or not knowing how to use it. And how shall power be kept in the right hands? The right hands are the hands of character. The building of character is a thing more fundamental than the acquisition of power.

DEPENDENCE OF CITY ON SINGLE INDUSTRY TERMED UNDESIRABLE

By MARY ANDERSON
Director of Women's Bureau, Department of Labor.
(Mary Anderson was born at Lidköping, Sweden, Aug. 27, 1872. Coming to the United States at the age of 16, she entered the garment making industry at West Pullman, Chicago. She was later in a shoe factory for 18 years. First appointed as assistant to the chief of the women's bureau, department of labor, she was named director in 1919. In 1923 she was chairman of the conference of all national organizations of women at Washington, D. C.)

A city dependent on a single industry cannot hope to develop the healthy business and social life among its workers that is possible where there is a diversity of industries and types of occupations.

Flint, Mich., which the women's bureau surveyed at the request of local organizations that had the best interest of the community at heart, is dependent almost entirely upon automobile manufacturing, and a curious situation has resulted. This industry though not strikingly seasonal, has a slack time of year, but they do not last; there is no competition among employers for labor; and the businesses that supply the needs of the workers in the automobile plants must take their chances of a large demand part of the time, and a much lowered one, accompanied by unpaid bills, the remainder.

In summing up, the situation in Flint is one that can be controlled largely by the introduction of more industries and especially of those of a more diversified character, and this would be true in any city similar in the lack of variety in its industries.

Social problems largely regulate themselves when there are enough jobs to go around, and when payment is just and working conditions good. Flint knows this and is making the attempt to readjust. In the meantime, however, every effort should be made to improve in all possible ways the conditions for the women at work, in order to promote the welfare of the entire community.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

How much we today are like the Greeks—those beauty-loving ancients of another day and country—in spite of the years that separate us from them in point of time. For we admire health as they did, and their standards of physical beauty are still standards that we follow.

In the Greece of an early era beauty and grace were deified. The exquisite sculpture and delicately traced vases and urns which have come down to us show even more clearly than the writings of old philosophers what heights of bodily beauty these pagan people attained.

And, contrary to the modern custom, masculine beauty was glorified far above the beauty of a woman. It was a physical era, and it was an age of man. Women were generally secluded. While their wives busied themselves with domestic duties, sheltered chastely behind the household walls, the lordly males passed pleasant, leisurely hours habitually in the open air. When they were not exercising in the famous gymnasia they were racing, rowing, leaping, jumping, carrying on all sorts of games and sports of strength to keep them beautiful and supple, vigorous and well.

The author of an old Greek ode names his wishes in this order:
1. Health.
2. Beauty.
3. Wealth—honestly got.
4. Privilege of being gay and merry with his friends.

Beauty, quite as much as excellence in oratory, and more than superiority in other lines of masculine endeavor, led to national fame. Contests of beauty were held for youths on the banks of the river Alpheus, in Elis. And there was also the festival of the Phileian Apollo at which a prize was given to the youth whose physical excellence was most admired, and to the one who could give the most exquisite kiss. The judge, in all cases, was a man, since masculine beauty was considered his concern much more than it was woman's.

At the tomb of Diocles in Megara, and at the temples of Juno in Sparta and in Lesbos, women, however, were allowed to compete for beauty prizes. And it is well known that that Spartan woman placed in their sleeping rooms statues of Apollo, Bacchus, Narcissus or Castor and Pollux, in the hope that the constant sight of these beautiful proportions would influence the beauty of their unborn male children.

There were, of course, beautiful women, and these it was whom the ancient Greek superior males chose to be their wives. But since the woman of the better classes as well as of the lower had no advantages of education, their husbands spent little time in their company. Intellectually cultivated themselves, they preferred the company of other intellectual males.

One class of women in Greece, the "Hetærae," or Companions, combined physical and mental attractions in such a way as to make them worthy of men's interest and affection. They inspired the men to do their best in statesmanship and war. Aspasia, who has been called one of this group, was the famous consort of Pericles, and is said to have aided him in writing his stirring speeches.

But the "Hetærae," like the "Bavaree" of India, to whom they correspond in type, were not a socially respected class. They were the courtesans who furnished artistic inspiration, not the women whom men married.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—Less crime is what President Hoover wants; not less of some one crime in particular—but less of any and all crime.

He has made this clear to every audience he has greeted to the press since his inauguration. His contemplated commission on investigation of the crime situation is to be charged with the task of determining how best to effect the desired improvement.

This, too, is plain enough. The question certain folk are still waiting to hear answered is: Which of these two problems is the commission expected to solve for Mr. Hoover?

1. What ails law enforcement?
2. What ails the law?

Senator David Ignatius Walsh of Massachusetts is among those who consider problem No. 1 quite beside the point—or, rather, consider that No. 1 can only be solved through the correct solution of No. 2—the latter being the vital problem, in Senator Walsh's opinion.

"Lawbreaking on so extensive a scale as at present," says the Massachusetts senator, "can be interpreted in only one way—implying grave defects in the law itself."

also to be reckoned with. A boy who sees one of his friends boldly violating the liquor law, though otherwise a perfectly abiding citizen, is apt to think that highway robbery is not black as it has been painted.

"There is also widespread petition of a breakdown in jury system."

"Naturally," said the senator, "a juror, asked to concur in a verdict of guilty against the author of a law which he himself habitually violates, would be human if he did not state to do it. Having free a few liquor law violators who know to be guilty, the juror is likelier to free the violators of various other laws, who he likewise knows to be guilty from force of habit."

"Yes, surely the jury system has suffered seriously."

"Ought a juror to vote for conviction, in the case of a violation which he deems not sin on the violator's part?"

"Yes, he ought," replied Senator Walsh. "He is sworn to consider the evidence as presented. But he frequently votes, and there is no remedy for it, with such a law in existence."

"Should the judge, then, be a more powerful?"

"Absolutely not."

"Should the majority of a jury be authorized to return a verdict?"

"Never."

"Either of those remedies would be worse than the present. It would amount to an attack on the jury system—one of our greatest Anglo-Saxon institutions."

"After all, it is the law that is at fault; not the jury system."

"The report of President Hoover's crime commission, on your assumption, senator, must substantiate that one law, to accomplish real results?"

"Yes," answered the senator. "Would such a report be likely?"

"I think so—to a considerable extent, if the investigation is impartial."

"Is an impartial investigation of prohibition possible?"

"Well, a commission composed of members of both parties, who at least never have been known either as wet or dry taters."

"And with adequate modification of prohibition, the crime problem would solve itself automatically—at any rate gradually."

"I verily believe so," said Massachusetts senator.

Diet and Health

BY LILL HUNT PETERS, M.D., AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

Answers to Mothers

God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers. —Jewish Proverb.

"I would like to ask your advice about the diet of a girl of six who is of normal weight but very small. She never was a hearty eater, though the doctor says she is a strong, healthy child. She is never fed between meals except a bottle of milk in school. She eats vegetables, milk, fruits, cereals, eggs, etc. Is not food of potatoes and eats shredded wheat or whole wheat bread to take its place. Her father objects to her diet, as he thinks whole wheat should not be given three times a day, even if she has her other foods with it. He claims it will spoil a child's digestion. I always considered whole wheat foods desirable. Would more meat and potatoes be better? I am a grandmother and never before felt puzzled about children's diets."

MRS. F.

Unless the child eats excessively of the whole wheat products, there is no reason why she should not have them three times a day, if she has her full quota of vegetables, fruits and milk. Potatoes and whole wheat products are both starchy foods and therefore energy foods, but they are not the same because their ashes differ. Potatoes leave an alkaline ash in the body, and all cereals leave an acid ash. We need both types of food, but should have a preponderance of the alkali-ash type.

The child's diet might be improved by taking more potatoes, and if she doesn't have any meat, her appetite might be stimulated by including a little. Perhaps orange juice at school (if she has plenty of milk at home) would also stimulate her appetite more.

We have a list of modern books on the general care and feeding of children which you may have.

Mrs. M. — Overweight, with the unbalanced diet which brings it on, not infrequently seems to be a cause of sterility, both in men and women. That's your cue!

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

The essential loneliness of human beings is one of the most depressing things in life and the one that takes the most time to realize. When we are small we nestle up to our mother and feel safe and close to her. But we don't grow up very far before we begin to realize that even mother doesn't always understand us and as we go on and grow further and further from all about us, we are more and more alone.

We marry and think that now we will have someone who will be to us as our mother was to us, and we find we are two separate human entities, each with its own inmost, most urgent problems that no one can comprehend, and we are still so lonely.

"Dear Virginia Lee: Just read my answer in the paper and I really had given up hope of a reply. Yes, for the sake of the darling baby I'm going to let things drift along as they are and I'll refuse to argue or quarrel with my husband. I could love him lots and never think of the old pal if only he were more affectionate and showed that he cared a little. A wife needs lots of love and encouragement to keep her just as a man craves for cooperation and understanding. I give him both and he laughs when I talk of love."

"I'm a young wife craving affection and must live this dead, monotonous life without the thing I want most? I have baby but I cannot return my love as yet. Hubby makes an awful lot of baby. I don't think that he baby, but I can't love him. If only he'd give me half of what he gives baby I'd be happy."

"Do you think a man should handle the money in the house? I have the feeling that I'll have to manage. I do the best I can, never wasting a cent."

"BROKEN HEARTED WIFE."

"As I said in the beginning of this article, dear, it takes a long time to realize that when two people are very close to one another, they are yet very far apart and each must live his life alone. As baby grows older he will mean more and more to you, but eventually he will be living his own little life. If you make a companion of him, however, he will be your greatest comfort. It may be that under the surface of his gruffness your husband is a man yearning for love and understanding and he thinks it weakness and fights against it, and that is what makes him appear rough and unfeeling. He is not ashamed to show his feelings to the baby and was not ashamed before you when he was in the full flush of love. We humans are queer things. As to the money, the best way is for the wife to have an allowance and run the house on that, but, oh, how many fights women have to get men to see things that way, and what a wretched state of affairs it is when a self-respecting woman has to beg for funds just to pay the bills, and when fault is found with her when she is doing her very best. Why not run your house on the budget plan and show him just how much is allowed for this and that, and let him handle the money if he wants to. Then, if he still fusses, tell him to manage the expenses himself and see if he can do any better. And you have my deep sympathy, my dear."

"I think so—to a considerable extent, if the investigation is impartial."

"Is an impartial investigation of prohibition possible?"

"Well, a commission composed of members of both parties, who at least never have been known either as wet or dry taters."

"And with adequate modification of prohibition, the crime problem would solve itself automatically—at any rate gradually."

Peter's Adventures

BY MRS. FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

A FRIEND AMONG HIS ENEMIES

Not a sound did Duck utter, but just stared and stared and stared at Peter until at last the boy grew nervous.

"What in the world is the matter now, Duck?" asked he. "Why are you looking at me like that? The cold has not gone to your head, has it?"

"No," replied Duck, solemnly, "it hasn't, but I have just received the surprise of my life. You are a Two-Legs, aren't you?"

Now it was the boy's turn to stare at the Duck.

"Of course I am. You have been looking at me for some time—you must have seen me even when you were in the pool. Do you mean to tell me this is the first you had noticed it? How could you possibly take me for anything else?"

"If I was looking at you I really didn't see you," declared Duck, slowly. "I am afraid I was too cold to notice anything—certainly when you were a Two-Legs! Just think of it!"

The boy lost his patience at last.

"Think of what?" demanded he. "Suppose I am sure I have just as much right to be a Two-Legs as you have to be a Duck."

"Of course! Of course!" cried the Duck, hastily. "Nobody says you haven't. But what I can't get over is that I am here beside you, and more than that, talking to you just as if you were my friend."

"Well — and am I not? Haven't I just saved your life?"

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

How much we today are like the Greeks—those beauty-loving ancients of another day and country—in spite of the years that separate us from them in point of time. For we admire health as they did, and their standards of physical beauty are still standards that we follow.

In the Greece of an early era beauty and grace were deified. The exquisite sculpture and delicately traced vases and urns which have come down to us show even more clearly than the writings of old philosophers what heights of bodily beauty these pagan people attained.

And, contrary to the modern custom, masculine beauty was glorified far above the beauty of a woman. It was a physical art, and it was an art of men. Women were generally secluded. Men occupied a prominent place. While their wives busied themselves with domestic duties, sheltered chastely behind the household walls, the lords, males, passed pleasant, leisurely hours habitually in the open air. When they were not exercising in the famous gymnasiums they were racing, rowing, leaping, jumping, carrying on all sorts of games and feats of strength to keep them beautiful and supple, vigorous and well.

The author of an old Greek ode names his wishes in this order:

1. Health.
2. Wealth—honestly got.
3. Privilege of being gay and merry with his friends.
4. Beauty, quite as much as excellence in oratory, and more than superiority in other lines of masculine endeavor, led to national fame. Contests of beauty were held for youths on the banks of the river Alpheus, in Elis. And there was also the festival of the Phileian Apollo at which a prize was given to the youth whose physical excellence was most admired, and to the one who could give the most exquisite kiss. The judge, in all cases, was a man, since masculine beauty was considered his concern much more than it was women's.

At the tomb of Diocles in Megara, and at the temples of Juno in Sparta and in Lesbos, women, however, were allowed to compete for beauty prizes. And it is well known that Spartan women placed in their sleeping rooms statues of Apollo, Bacchus, Narcissus or Castor and Pollux, in the hope that the constant sight of these beautiful proportions would influence the beauty of their unborn male children.

There were, of course, beautiful women, and these it was whom the ancient Greek superior males chose to be their wives. But since the woman of the better classes as well as of the lower had no advantages of education, their husbands spent little time in their company. Intellectually cultivated themselves, they preferred the company of other intellectual males.

One class of women in Greece, the "Hetærae," or Companions, combined physical and mental attractions in such away as to make them worthy of men's interest and affection. They inspired the men to do their best in statesmanship and war. Aspasia, who has been called one of this group, was the famous consort of Pericles, and is said to have aided him in writing his stirring speeches.

But the "Hetærae," like the "Barydore," of India, to whom they correspond in type, were not a socially respected class. They were the courtesans who furnished men companionship as well as artistic inspiration, not the women whom men married.

"If the purpose of President Hoover's commission is to expose the defects in our law, it may accomplish a great deal of good. Its purpose is merely to devise more effective means of enforcement. Force cannot make laws effective. They can be made effective only through general acceptance."

"Have you any special law in mind, senator?" I asked.

"Oh, of course I have in mind the prohibition law," rejoined the New England legislator. "The trouble began with that, but it has not ended with that. Contentment for law is contagious. Besides, such crime which does not arise directly from prohibition, does arise indirectly from it. For example, when two rival gangs of bootleggers shoot it out, the 'gun play' is not in violation of the prohibition law, but it is incidental to prohibition. So is a vast amount of official corruption."

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D., AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

Answers to Mothers
God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.

—Jewish Proverb.
I would like to ask your advice about the diet of a girl of six who is of normal weight but very small. She never was a hearty eater, though the doctor says she is a strong, healthy child. She is never fed between meals except a bottle of milk in school. She eats vegetables, milk, fruits, cereals, eggs, etc. Is not fond of potatoes and cats shredded wheat or whole wheat bread to take its place. Her father objects to her diet as he thinks whole wheat should not be given three times a day, even if she has her other foods with it. He claims it will spoil a child's digestion. I always considered whole wheat foods desirable. Would more meat and potatoes be better? I am a grandmother and never before felt puzzled about children's diets.

MRS. F.

In animals there seems to be a specific vitamin, known as vitamin E, necessary to prevent sterility. This vitamin E is highest in wheat germ oil. I don't know whether this is on the market or not. It is also found in lean meats, lettuce and other foods. But the other vitamins are also necessary, too. Of course, you have been overeating for your needs, and while you may have vitamins, your excesses of starches and sugars and oily foods have caused an imbalance and a lessening of the proportion of the vitamins needed.

Send for our pamphlet on reducing and gaining, predict that when you get off that 70 pounds you will be sending for the article on Diet During Pregnancy and Nursing. It has happened many times.

Tomorrow: Tomato Juice for Ex-Tanks.

Editor's Note: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose, nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column, in turn. Requests for articles must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope and 2 cents in coin for each article, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the pamphlet on reducing and gaining, 10 cents in coin, with fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, must be enclosed. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper.

Mrs. M. — Overweight, with the unbalanced diet which brings it on, not infrequently seems to be a cause of sterility, both in men and women. That's your cue!

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

The essential loneliness of human beings is one of the most depressing things in life and the one that takes the most time to realize. When we are small we nestle up to our mother and feel safe and close to her. But we don't grow up wife far before we begin to realize that even mother doesn't always understand us and as we go on and grow further and further from all about us and more and more alone.

We marry and think that now we will have someone who will be to us as ourself, who will understand us absolutely and we them. And we find we are two separate human entities, each with its innermost, most urgent problems that no one can comprehend, and we are still so lonely.

"Dear Virginia Lee: Just read my answer in the paper and I really had given up hope of a reply. Yes, for the sake of the darling baby I'm going to let things drift along as they are and I'll refuse to argue or quarrel with my husband. I could love him and never think of the old pal if only he were more affectionate. A few showed that he cared a little. A wife needs lots of love and encouragement to keep her just as a man craves for co-operation and understanding. I give him both and his laziness when I talk of love."

I'm a young wife craving affection and must get it somehow or must live with a dead, monotonous life without the thing I want most? I have baby but he cannot return my love as yet. Hubby makes an awful lot of baby. I don't think that he had that much love in him. If only he'd give me half of what he gives baby, my dear.

Peter's Adventures

BY MRS. LORENCE SMITH VINCENT

A FRIEND AMONG HIS ENEMIES

Peter was puzzled at the bird's actions.

"You have?" declared Duck. "That is exactly what makes it all so queer. All my life I have made it a point to keep out of the way of the humans. Never did I see eyes on a Two-Legs without running away from him, and now, all in a day, I have been close to two of the creatures—so close, indeed, that they have both laid hands on me."

"Two?" exclaimed the boy, in surprise. "You didn't tell me that!"

"I haven't had time," replied the Duck. "It is because of the other Two-Legs that I am so astonished to find myself being friendly with you."

"But why—why? You have been hinting at things long enough, Duck. Do come out with it. Is there any reason in the world why you shouldn't be friendly to a Two-Legs, I'd like to know?"

"Really," declared his throat and acted a bit embarrassed.

"Would you feel kindly toward any creature that tried to take your life every time he saw you?" asked the bird.

"Probably not," replied the boy, slowly. "But who does try to do you harm?"

"Every Two-Legs I ever saw except you," answered the bird; "and you have done nothing to save my life instead of destroy it! That is why I am so amazed. You have been so good to me I hate to tell you, but it was really a Two-Legs who was the cause of all my misfortune today."

Next: "Driven Into Trouble."

also to be reckoned with. The boy who sees one of his elders boldly violating the liquor law, though otherwise a perfectly law-abiding citizen, is apt to think that highway robbery is not as black as it has been painted."

"There is also widespread competition of a breakdown in the jury system."

"Naturally," said the senator. "A juror, asked to concur in a verdict of guilty against the violator of a law which he, himself, habitually violates, would hardly be human if he did not hesitate to do it. Having freed a few liquor law violators whom he knows to be guilty, the same juror is likelier to free the violator of various other laws, whom he likewise knows to be guilty— from force of habit."

"Yes, surely the jury system has suffered seriously."

"Ought a juror to vote for conviction, in the case of a law violation which he deems no real sin on the violator's part?"

"Yes, he ought," replied Senator Walsh. "He is sworn to, if he considers the evidence sufficient. But he frequently does not, and there is no remedy for it, with such a law existence."

"Should the judge, then, be given more power?"

"Absolutely not."

"Should the majority of a jury be authorized to return a verdict?"

"Never."

"Either of those remedies would be worse than the disease. It would amount to an attack on the jury system—one of our greatest Anglo-Saxon institutions."

"After all, it is the law that is at fault; not the jury system."

"The report of President Hoover's crime commission, on your assumption, senator, must strike essentially at that one law, to accomplish real results?"

"Yes," answered the senator.

"Would such a report be heeded?"

"I think so—to a considerable extent—if the investigation is impartial."

"Is an impartial investigation of prohibition possible?"

"Well, a commission could be gathered together of members who at least never have been known either as wet or dry agitators."

"And with adequate modification of prohibition, the present crime problem would solve itself automatically—at any rate gradually."

"I verily believe so," said the Massachusetts senator.

"No," replied Duck, solemnly. "It hasn't, but I have just received the surprise of my life. You are a Two-Legs, aren't you?"

Now it was the boy's turn to stare at the Duck.

"Of course I am. You have been looking at me for some time—you must have seen me even when you were in the pool. Do you mean to tell me this is the first you had noticed it? How could you possibly take me for anything else?"

"If I was looking at you I really didn't see you," declared Duck, slowly. "I am afraid I was too cold to notice anything—certainly you were a Two-Legs! Just think of it!"

The boy lost his patience at last.

"Think of what?" demanded he. "Suppose I am sure I have just as much right to be a Two-Legs as you have to be a Duck. I don't see why you should be the Duck, and I don't see why you shouldn't be the Two-Legs! Just think of it!"

"Well — and am I not? Haven't I just saved your life?"

SIXTY ANSWER GRID CALL OF WILLAMAN

COLUMBUS, O., March 28. — Spring football practice began at Ohio State University today with more than sixty freshmen, sophomores and juniors answering the first call of Coach Sam Willaman. Coach Willaman and his board of strategy, which includes Don Miller, one of Notre Dame's mythical "Four Horsemen," George Hauser and Swede Oberlander, will have some idea of next year's Buckeye varsity eleven when the four weeks training period is over. The practice will take more the form of "skull" sessions than in developing the physical possibilities of the yearlings. Willaman will dwell on fundamentals only. Miller will handle the backfield, and Hauser the line while Charley Seddon and Howard Yerges will serve as assistants.

OPINION DIVIDED ON TITLE BATTLE

CHICAGO, March 28.—Walker by a knockout, or Loughran by a decision. That opinion was the consensus today as Tommy Loughran prepared to defend his lightweight championship against Mickey Walker before the largest indoor crowd in history here today. Confident of victory, both men were in fine condition and it seemed reasonable to assume that each will resort to his particular style of fighting. Walker's style is the bulldog rush, designed to knockout an opponent. Loughran prefers to box and his ability in this respect indicates he will take the decision if he can avoid a knockout.

Baseball Puzzlers

By CHARLEY BARRETT
Big League Scout Writing for Central Press and The Gazette
Big league umpires have many intricate plays to call during the course of a season, but it is the umpires in the smaller circuits, the so-called tank towns, that have the real tricky decisions to render. The peculiar conditions of small parks bring about situations that might appear laughable to the major league fan, but unfortunately are very real to the man calling 'em in the bushes. It was when I was scouting for the Tigers that the following mix-up turned up in a game in central Ohio between two twilight league teams.

A runner on first attempted to steal. The catcher's throw was high and the second baseman, taking it one-handed, slapped his glove on the sliding runner. In doing so he lost his grip and the ball trickled down into the breast pocket of the base runner. Either the boy was confused or was smart enough to realize the situation, for he leaped to his feet, rushed to third and then scored while all the infielders were frantically searching for the missing ball.

It was then that the ball was discovered in his pocket. The defensive team appealed to the umpires to call him out on the ground of interference. This the umpire refused to do. He was then urged to send the runner back to first base, and after a comical delay of consulting the rule book the umpire made his own decision. He sent the runner back to second base.

Curiously enough, National and American league umpires have differed on the proper ruling on this play.

ARRESTED HERE FOR COLUMBUS POLICE

Wanted by Columbus authorities on a charge of burglary and larceny, Harley Watson, 31, colored, this city, was arrested Wednesday afternoon by Patrolman George Robinson and is being held at Police Headquarters.

According to a warrant received by Police Chief M. E. Graham, Watson looted the home of Richard Peatross, 104 N. 9th St., Columbus, O., of furnishings valued at $117, October 5, 1928.

The stolen articles included: two rugs valued at $20; two gas heating stoves, $15; one bed and bedding, $15; one trunk, $15; one suit of clothes, $30; one music cabinet, $15; one piano stool, $2, and one bird and cage, $5.

Columbus authorities are expected to return Watson to that city Thursday to face a probable charge of entering an inhabited dwelling.

Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients. The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin. Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers. —Adv.

Dr. J. C. Caldwell M.D.
AT AGE 83

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies. It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

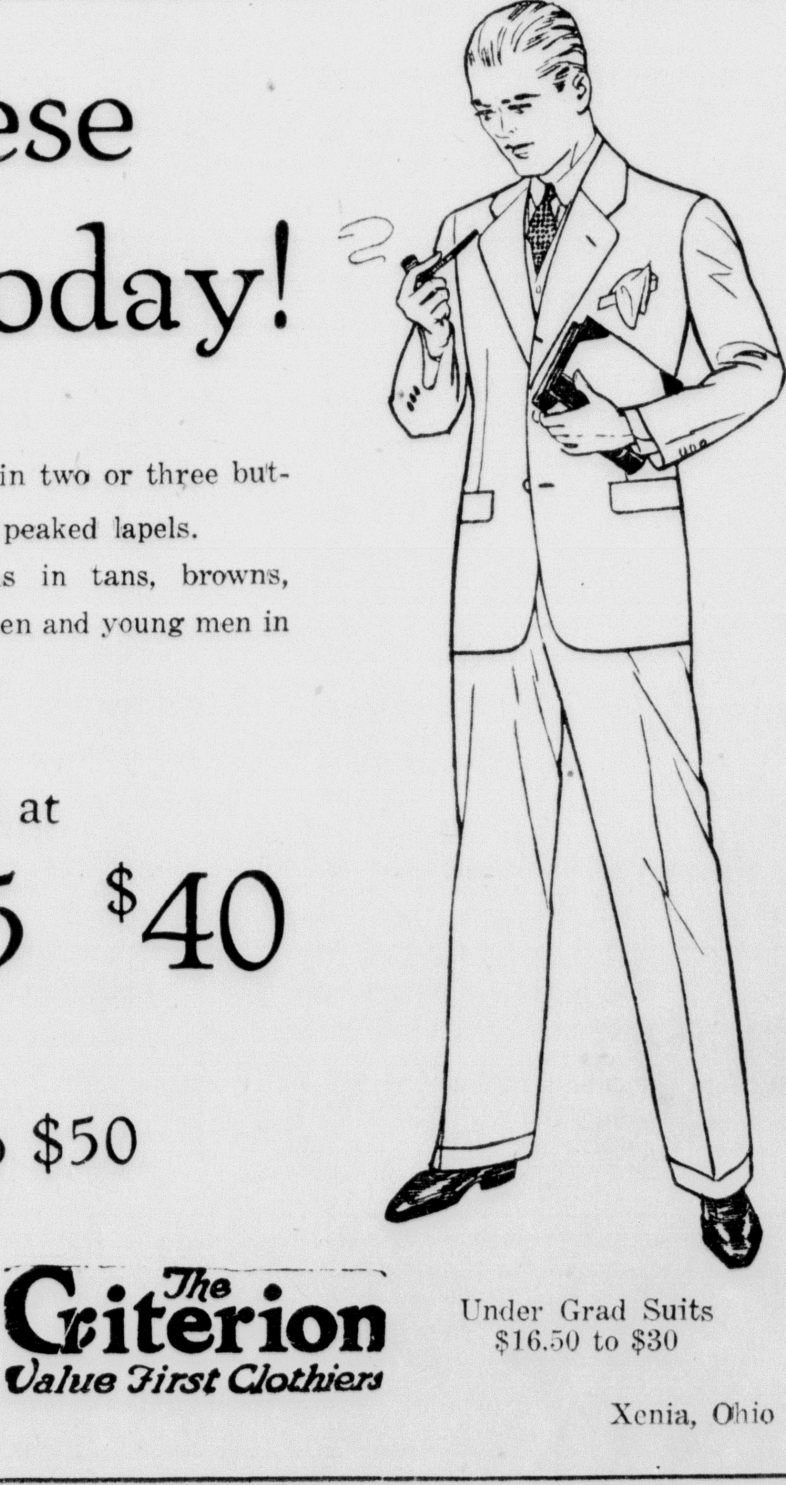

THE GAS THAT MAKES PEP!

At the end of a busy day you want a drink that is sparkling, tasty, cool, to give you back that zestful feeling you started out with—your automobile is the same — starting out with you and keeping pace with you throughout the day—ending up with that same tired feeling—yet unable to ask for a cooling drink. She purrs contentedly when you give her back that zest she began with by filling her up with SCHMIDT'S Gas.

SIXTY ANSWER GRID CALL OF WILLAMAN

COLUMBUS, O., March 28.—Spring football practice began at Ohio State University today with more than sixty freshmen, sophomores and juniors answering the first call of Coach Sam Willaman. Coach Willaman and his board of strategy, which includes Don Miller, one of Notre Dame's mythical "Four Horsemen," George Hauser and Swede Oberlander, will have some idea of next year's Buckeye varsity eleven when the four weeks training period is over.

The practice will take more the form of "skull" sessions than in developing the physical possibilities of the yearlings.

Willaman will dwell on fundamentals only.

Miller will handle the backfield, and Hauser the line while Charley Seddon and Howard Vergees will serve as assistants.

OPINION DIVIDED ON TITLE BATTLE

CHICAGO, March 28.—Walker by a knockout, or Loughran by a decision.

That opinion was the consensus today as Tommy Loughran prepared to defend his lightweight championship against Mickey Walker before the largest indoor crowd in history here today.

Confident of victory, both men were in fine condition and it seemed reasonable to assume that each will resort to his particular style of fighting.

Walker's style is the bulldog rush, designed to knock out an opponent. Loughran prefers to box and his ability in this respect indicates he will take the decision if he can avoid a knockout.

Bowling

By a margin of sixteen pins the team composed of Boxwell, Tate, Gibney, Richards, Sugden and Clevenger won the weekly bowling match in the Business Men's League Wednesday night. The winners totaled 2,731 for the three games. Box score:

Baseball Puzzlers

By CHARLEY BARRETT
Big League Scout Writing for Central Press and The Gazette
Big league umpires have many intricate plays to call during the course of a season, but it is the umpires in the smaller circuits, the so-called tank towns, that have the real tricky decisions to render.

The peculiar conditions of small parks bring about situations that might appear laughable to the major league fan, but unfortunately are very real to the man calling 'em in the bushes.

It was when I was scouting for the Tigers that the following mix-up turned up in a game in central Ohio between two twilight league teams.

A runner on first attempted to steal. The catcher's throw was high and the second baseman, taking it one-handed, slapped his glove on the sliding runner. In doing so he lost his grip and the ball trickled down into the breast pocket of the base runner.

Either the boy was confused or was smart enough to realize the situation, for he leaped to his feet, rushed to third and then scored while all the infielders were frantically searching for the missing ball.

It was then that the ball was discovered in his pocket. The defensive team appealed to the umpire to call him out on the ground of interference. This the umpire refused to do. He was then urged to send the runner back to first base, and after a comical delay of consulting the rule book the umpire made his own decision. He sent the runner back to second base.

Curiously enough, National and American league umpires have differed on the proper ruling on this play.

SEEKING GAMES

The Columbus Stevens Realtors, several times champions of the Saturday Afternoon M. and M. League, also entered in 1929, will have a road team this season and will be represented by some of central Ohio's best diamond talent. The Columbus nine desires to book games for Sundays and holidays. Propositions for games should be addressed to Frank R. House, manager, 328 Clinton Bldg., Columbus, O.

HOW TO FIGHT EXCESS FAT

There are hard ways, like starvation, but fewer and fewer employ them. There is a pleasant way, modern and scientific, which combats the cause. A vast number of people now use it. And the slender figures now seen everywhere are largely due to that.

That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. And everybody, in almost every circle, sees the change. New beauty, new health, new vitality.

Each box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. So users have no fear of harm. Learn the facts about Marmola, because of the good it has done. Ask your druggist—now—for a $1 box with the book. Then decide.

ARRESTED HERE FOR COLUMBUS POLICE

Wanted by Columbus authorities on a charge of burglary and larceny, Harry Watson, 31, colored, this city, was arrested Wednesday afternoon by Patrolman George Robinson and is being held at Police Headquarters.

According to a warrant received by Police Chief M. E. Graham, Watson looted the home of Richard Peatross, 104 N. 9th St., Columbus, O., of furnishings valued at $117, October 5, 1928.

The stolen articles included: two rugs valued at $20; two gas heating stoves, $15; one bed and bedding, $15; one trunk, $15; one cabinet, $15; one piano stool, $2, and one bird and cage, $5.

Columbus authorities are expected to return Watson to that city Thursday to face a probable charge of entering an inhabited dwelling.

MAYOR'S COURT

PAIR ARRESTED
Robert Burns, this city, and Homer Lancaster, Dayton, were arrested by Patrolmen Charles Thompson, J. E. Craig and George Robinson Wednesday night on intoxication charges. Burns pleaded not guilty and his case was continued by Mayor Karl R. Bailey Thursday morning. Lancaster will be given a hearing Thursday afternoon.

Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative
When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physical and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. T. A. SPENCER, 94,
CLAIMED BY DEATH
HERE ON THURSDAY

T. A. Spencer, 94, one of the oldest residents of Greene County, passed away Thursday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. M. Bull, 203 E. Second St.

He was born near Cedarville, December 17, 1834, the oldest son of James and Nancy Spencer. Until with the Seceder Church at Caesars Creek in early youth he remained a member of the United Presbyterian Church until his death, serving as elder in the Cedarville congregation a number of years.

Mr. Spencer was united in marriage to Miss Mary Dean, March 25, 1859. After her death he was married May 16, 1887 to Mrs. Mary Dodds Geer.

Surviving are two children by his first marriage, W. A. Spencer, Cedarville, and Mrs. J. M. Bull, this city; two sisters, Mrs. Nannie Henderson, Cedarville, and Mrs. Belle Finney, Freeport, Pa.; one brother, Dr. F. M. Spencer, Sterling, Kan.; and three grandchildren, Mrs. R. J. Shultz, Dayton, the Rev. Fred A. Bull, of Somonauk, Ill., and Miss Wilma Spencer, of Cedarville. Four great grandchildren.

Children also survive. One child by the first marriage is dead.
Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. M. Bull. Burial will be made in Woodland Cemetery.

KILLED BY AUTO
AKRON, O., March 28.—Washington Woodling, 68, died today from injuries sustained when he was run over by an alleged drunken motorist. The driver was arrested.

FOUND KONJOLA AFTER 10-YEAR HEALTH SEARCH

Immediate Health Comes When New Medicine of 22 Ingredients Is Put To The Test

"It took me ten years to find the right medicine," said Mr. John H. McKetterick, 26 State Street, Washington C. H., Ohio, "but I certainly found it in this remarkable Konjola. For ten years I had indigestion so bad that I thought I had reached the point where I was beyond relief. After every meal

MR. JOHN H. MCKETTERICK suffered intensely, no matter how little I ate. My digestion simply was not on the job, and my food soured in my stomach. Often, in these ten years, I had to stay in bed, unable to get up and about. "A friend suggested Konjola, but I did not take him seriously. But at last he talked me into trying it, and I soon found out that he knew what he was talking about. With the very first bottle I noticed improvement. In two weeks after starting with Konjola, I found myself eating regular meals again, and digesting them. My bowels are perfect, and the poisons are being taken from my system. I am feeling better all over than I have in years. I can readily understand why Konjola is known as the medicine with more than a million friends. Konjola is different from any other remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health thru this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity. Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Gallaher Drug Store, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section. —A.L.V.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS

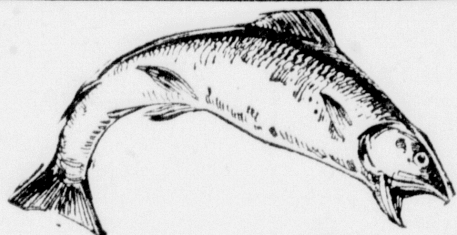

Editor, The Gazette:

I see that Cedarville has installed a traffic intersection light similar to the one used in Xenia.

That puts Cedarville on a par with Xenia as far as control of intersection traffic is attempted and suggests that traffic in the village of Cedarville is equal to that in Xenia.

Lebanon, London and other towns and villages much smaller than Xenia seem to think more seriously of traffic control at street intersections than Xenia, the implication being that Xenia is lax in this respect. Traffic guide posts that formerly controlled turns at Detroit and Market and Detroit and Second Sts., were removed for no explained reason sometime ago and have not been replaced. The fact that there is a control device at Main and Detroit Sts., diverts much traffic to these other two principal intersections so that its benefit as a protection for the pedestrian has been lessened. Surely the intersections at Detroit and Market and Detroit and Second Sts. are as important as the intersection at Detroit and Church Sts., where there is a flashing signal post standing very much in the way of traffic, back on the curb line, for some other unexplained reason. If Xenia can't have boulevard lights any place except around the water plant at Old Town unless furnished out of the pockets of the merchants, it at least should have adequate traffic protection comparable with its size and the amount of traffic here. Easter morning sunrise services will be held in Shawnee Park Sunday morning at 6:41.

Through the efforts of City Auditor T. H. Zell, a white cross was erected at the east side of the park Wednesday and each evening this week it will be lighted by flood lights. A platform is being erected near the park auditorium for the services. Two trumpeters will lead the march to the platform. If the weather prevents outdoor services the exercises will be held in the First Reformed Church.

NO ACTION TAKEN ON GRADE CROSSING

Reports that recent steps have been taken toward elimination of the grade crossing on the Jamestown Pike with the Pennsylvania Railroad near the eastern city limits of Xenia, where two deaths occurred as a result of an accident last week, were denied by County Commissioners Thursday. The crossing in question is con-

SCIENCE learned a lesson from THE TYPHOON

We put it to work..that's one secret of SOHIO'S extra purity

TYPHOONS suck up water as they blow across the sea. The wind's tremendous velocity decreases as it approaches land. No longer sustained by terrific speed, the water drops to earth. This is why heavy rains invariably accompany hurricanes and typhoons. Long ago science discovered this phenomenon. Now its principle has been put to work to make Sohio pure.

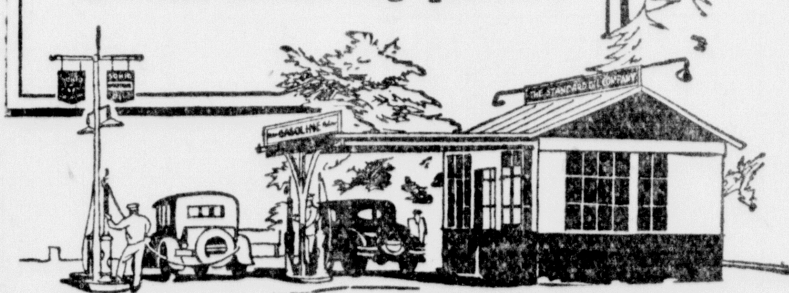

The oil from which Sohio is made is vaporized by heating to 1000° Fahrenheit. Under 1000 lbs. pressure, it is forced through miles of pipe at terrific speed. At a certain point in its progress, this vapor is projected into a huge expansion tank. Immediately its velocity decreases. An action similar to the hurricane's releasing rain occurs. Impurities drop to the bottom of the tank. The vapor is then carried on through other pipes for even further purification. That's one secret of Sohio's extra purity, extra volatility.

Sohio is sold at Red-White-and-Blue Standard service stations and dealers' pumps everywhere in Ohio.

Konjola is different from any other remedy in this section. It contains 22 juices extracted from natural plants, which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly indorsed medicine that is known in this vicinity. Konjola is sold in Xenia at the Ollander Drug Store, and by all the best druggists throughout this entire section. —A.V.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Editor,

The Gazette:

I see that Cedarville has installed a traffic intersection light similar to the one used in Xenia.

That puts Cedarville on a par with Xenia as far as control of intersection traffic is attempted and suggests that traffic in the village of Cedarville is equal to that in Xenia.

Lebanon, London and other towns and villages much smaller than Xenia seem to think more seriously of traffic control at street intersections than Xenia, the implication being that Xenia is lax in this respect. Traffic guide posts that formerly controlled turns at Detroit and Market and Detroit and Second Sts., were removed for no explained reason sometime ago and have not been replaced. The fact that there is a control device at Main and Detroit Sts., diverts much traffic to these other two principal intersections so that its benefit as a protection for the pedestrian has been lessened. Surely the intersections at Detroit and Market and Detroit and Second Sts. are as important as the intersection at Detroit and Church Sts., where there is a flashing signal post standing very much in the way of traffic, back on the curb line, for some other unexplained reason. If Xenia can't have boulevard lights any place except around the water plant at Old Town unless furnished out of the pockets of the merchants, it at least should have adequate traffic protection comparable with its size and the amount of traffic here.

Easter morning sunrise services will be held in Shawnee Park Sunday morning at 6:41.

Through the efforts of City Auditor T. H. Zell, a white cross was erected at the east side of the park Wednesday and each evening this week it will be lighted by flood lights. A platform is being erected near the park auditorium for the services. Two trumpeters will lead the march to the platform. If the weather prevents outdoor

Reports that recent steps have been taken toward elimination of the grade crossing on the Jamestown Pike with the Pennsylvania Railroad near the eastern city limits of Xenia, where two deaths occurred as a result of an accident last week, were denied by County Commissioners Thursday. The crossing in question is considered a dangerous one and has had a bad record for accidents in recent years. Two prominent retired farmers of Fayette County were killed at the crossing last week and ten persons have lost their lives there within the last four years. County Commissioners do not expect to take the initiative in reviving agitation for elimination of the crossing, they announced.

SCIENCE learned a lesson from

THE TYPHOON

We put it to work...that's one secret of SOHIO'S extra purity

TYPHOONS suck up water as they blow across the sea. The wind's tremendous velocity decreases as it approaches land. No longer sustained by terrific speed, the water drops to earth. This is why heavy rains invariably accompany hurricanes and typhoons. Long ago science discovered this phenomenon. Now its principle has been put to work to make Sohio pure.

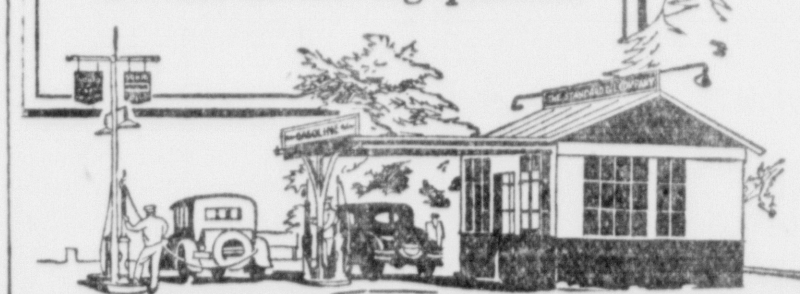

The oil from which Sohio is made is vaporized by heating to 1000° Fahrenheit. Under 1000 lbs. pressure, it is forced through miles of pipe at terrific speed. At a certain point in its progress, this vapor is projected into a huge expansion tank. Immediately its velocity decreases. An action similar to the hurricane's releasing rain occurs. Impurities drop to the bottom of the tank. The vapor is then carried on through other pipes for even further purification. That's one secret of Sohio's extra purity, extra volatility.

Sohio is sold at Red-White-and-Blue Standard service stations and dealers' pumps everywhere in Ohio.

SENDS DOG TO RESCUE

CORNELL, Wis., March 28. — Charles Minick, a road patrolman, lay helpless in his bachelor home near here suffering from a violent attack of rheumatism. Minick called his airedale dog to the bedside, tied a message to the dog's collar and repeated the name of a neighbor several times. The message was delivered by the animal and Minick was taken to town and given medical care.

No one can afford pimples

HAPPY is the woman who has a clear, smooth, flawless skin! Both men and women admire such captivating loveliness. First impressions cannot be good without a clear skin—first impressions are quickly made and are not soon forgotten. Old friends may excuse pimples and secretly sympathize but new acquaintances may not be so charitable. Skin blemishes are not inviting. Neither can they be covered up. They embarrass. Hold people back. Steal away joy and happiness.

A lovely—clear skin—is within the reach of all. To those who have lost it, hope is offered. You, too, may have a beautiful skin, rose-petal in texture, pretty as a picture and without a single pimple.

Strong, healthy blood nourishes the body and fights against infection and disease.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there could be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

A clear, smooth, lovely skin speaks of rich, red blood within.

Many thousands have regained their strength and charm by taking S.S.S. It is Nature's own blood tonic for raising the body's power of resistance to disease, improving the appetite, building firm flesh, and clearing the skin. S.S.S. promotes constructive metabolism (healthy body building). It increases the number of red blood-cells.

When you take S.S.S. to get rid of pimples, boils, eczema and such skin troubles, you are building up the system to ward off the graver diseases of which these blemishes are Nature's warning.

S.S.S. is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has a successful record of over 100 years back of it.

All Drug Stores sell S.S.S. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

GOVERNOR INVITED TO SPEAK AT HOME HOSPITAL DEDICATION

An invitation has been extended to Governor Myers V. Cooper to deliver the principal address May 11 at dedicatory exercises for the new $100,000 hospital nearing completion at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, according to Col. Charles V. Burton, superintendent of the institution.

HE WAS LIFELESS AND DESPONDENT

But ALL-BRAN made him wide-awake and well — doctor prescribed it

CONSTIPATION ruins hopes, saps strength. Yet thousands of sufferers have found the way to relieve and prevent this disease. Read how this man rid his system of constipation.

"During the three years before ALL-BRAN cured me, I experienced more embarrassing moments than I care to tell of. Being lifeless, dull, lazy and despondent, I could not keep my job. My friends didn't want my company and I was tired of being asked 'What in the world is the matter with you?' 'After spending much money for treatment, I finally found a doctor who advised me to eat ALL-BRAN three times a day. I did this for three months and I didn't need to be told that I looked better. . . I felt better and acted better. . . I am still using ALL-BRAN every morning and have no trouble now whatsoever.' (Name and address upon request.)

Guard against constipation by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to prevent it, to relieve it. Just eat two table-spoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Far better than habit-forming drugs and pills.

ALL-BRAN is 100% effective. Doctors recommend it because it promotes natural elimination. Serve it with milk or cream. Use it in cooking—muffins, bread, etc. Delicious recipes on the package. Grocers sell it. Restaurants, hotels, dining-cars service it. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

GOVERNOR INVITED TO SPEAK AT HOME HOSPITAL DEDICATION

An invitation has been extended to Governor Myers V. Cooper to deliver the principal address May 11 at dedicatory exercises for the new $100,000 hospital nearing completion at the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Home, according to Col. Charles V. Burton, superintendent of the institution.

Governor Cooper will probably accept the invitation, it is said. Members of the Medical and Surgical Consulting Staff of the Home,

HE WAS LIFELESS AND DESPONDENT

But ALL-BRAN made him wide-awake and well — doctor prescribed it

CONSTIPATION ruins hopes, saps strength. Yet thousands of sufferers have found the way to relieve and prevent this disease. Read how this man rid his system of constipation.

"During the three years before ALL-BRAN cured me, I experienced more embarrassing moments than I care to tell of. Being lifeless, dull, lazy and despondent, I could not keep my job. My friends didn't want my company and I was tired of being asked 'What in the world is the matter with you?'"

"After spending much money for treatment, I finally found a doctor who advised me to eat ALL-BRAN three times a day. I did this for three months and I didn't need to be told that I looked better. I felt better and acted better. I am still using ALL-BRAN every morning and have no trouble now whatever." (Name and address upon request.)

Guard against constipation by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to prevent it—relieve it. Just eat two table-spoonsful daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Far better than habit-forming drugs and pills.

ALL-BRAN is 100% effective. Doctors recommend it because it promotes natural elimination. Serve it with milk or cream. Use it in cooking—muffins, bread, etc. Delicious recipes on the package. Grocers sell it. Restaurants, hotels, dining-cars service it. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

GOTHAM COULD BUY 14 BILLION EGGS

By HOWARD T. JONES
Staff Correspondent for Central Press and The Gazette

NEW YORK, March 28.—New York City, second only to the federal government in the amount of taxpayers' money which it spends, had an income of $58,941,000 during 1928, according to an analysis made public by Dr. Luther Gulick, director of the National Institute of Public Administration.

Some idea of what this amount of money means may be gained by assuming that New York City suddenly decided to spend it all for eggs.

At the prevailing average of egg prices today, this money would buy 14,062,584,000 eggs!

It would take one man, if he were to eat an egg a day, 38,527, 627 years, four months, two weeks and five days to consume that number of eggs. Another way of saying it is that if a third of the population of the entire United States ate an egg a day, it would take them a whole year to consume the supply that New York City could buy with its 1928 income.

Of course, if we speak of egg rolling contests, we become ridiculous. The population of the world live in is somewhat less than 2,000,000,000. Each egg roller, if we grant that every man, woman and child in the world were to become an egg roller, would have to sit quanta a half dozen eggs!

Talk of walking on egg shells.

WILL DROP BUSES

King Brothers Co., Lebanon, O., petitioned the State Utilities Commission at Columbus Wednesday for permission to take off two eighteen-passenger buses from its Lebanon-Xenia-Dayton line.

The building was erected sixteen years ago through subscription of residents and members, many of whom have since moved to other communities.

MEXICO IS TAUGHT VALUE OF AVIATION BY PRESENT REVOLT

MONTEREY, N. L., Mexico, Mar. 28.—Commercial aviation probably will play a huge part in solving the difficult transportation problem which confronts the development of Mexico.

This is the belief army engineers and business leaders of this romantic yet undeveloped country expressed to this correspondent during informal discussions of problems confronting the advancement of Mexico. The vast importance of a widespread rapid transportation system was emphasized during the last revolution in this country.

Many of the severe engagements of the revolution would have been short lived had there been facilities available for quickly moving troops to rebel strongholds. At present the railroad lines, which wind around the mountainous regions thus lengthening journeys from point to point, are the only means for moving soldiers and fighting equipment.

Planes Save Bridges

It is easy for retreating rebels, or bandit gangs as the case may be, to tear up railway tracks or dynamite bridges and retard the progress of federal troops. It sometimes requires four days to transport troop trains 150 miles because retreating combatants have torn up the rails to retard their pursuers.

Had there been a highway system across the deserts and mountains, troops could have been moved rapidly to the front by motor trucks. Had there been landing fields available, combat planes could have presented the dynamiting of railway bridges and dispersed rebels with bomb attacks.

Construction of a national highway system and a more connected railway system will entail huge expense and many years of labor, because of the rugged nature of the country.

Widespread development of commercial aviation can be made at less expense and at the same time provide Mexico with the most modern means of communication.

"Transportation and education are the greatest needs of our country," said Lieutenant Christobal Garciaalzo, attached to the personal staff of General Juan Andreu Almazan, Mexico's most popular general.

"Development of the vast sources of our country depends largely upon the two things. You have seen the ruggedness of the country which makes highway and railway construction tedious and expensive.

"Even in the mountain regions there are many mesas where emergency landing fields could be made at small expense."

To Study Here

Lieutenant Garciaalzo plans to study aviation in the United States. He said many young officers in the Mexican army hope to become flyers.

The flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh from Washington, D. C., to Mexico City aroused widespread interest in aviation in this country. Today many Mexican youths have the desire to become flyers. Even the Yaqui Indians in the army are interested in planes, which they insist upon calling "pigeons."

Recently this correspondent was guest of J. S. Joffre, youthful Mexican president of the Inter-American Transportes de Aeron, on a flight in the first cabin plane his firm has purchased for commercial flying in Mexico. The plane was a six passenger Knoll biplane, built especially for flying in the higher altitude of Mexico.

Have No Fear

"I do not believe there is the fear of airplane rides in Mexico that there is in the United States," Joffre said. "We will have five of these planes in operation on regular air lines before mid-summer."

Joffre's firm already owns airports at fifty-four Mexican cities and will acquire more as they are needed. Contracts for handling air mail and express already have been made with the government and large fruit shipping and mining companies which desire rapid transit. Joffre's air lines will make possible trips between some cities in two to three hours which now require fifteen to twenty hours.

"POOR AS CHURCH MOUSE" PROVES APT

FRESNO, Cal., March 28.—"Poor as a church mouse," never had a better illustration than the sale of a church building and all its contents at an auction ten miles east of here.

The church building, organ, books, pews, chairs, bibles and bible literature brought a total of $115 when the Locan Sunday School building went under the hammer.

The building was erected sixteen years ago through subscription of residents and members, many of whom have since moved to other communities.

"The devil you aren't!" laughed Saunders. She looked up to see both Saunders and the salesman laughing at her.

Passed Up!

READ THIS FIRST:

Betty Brown dances her way into the friendship of a fast and undesirable crowd, an out of the life of many nice people. An automobile accident results in a dislocated knee, ends her dancing career and her friendship with the fast crowd. George Harris, an old friend, stands by in time of trouble and gives her employment after she is out of the hospital. While there she studies stenography and typing and secures two positions, both of which she loses. Discouraged, she is almost ready to marry George out of gratitude.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIX

Betty's conversation with Mr. Smith, her former employer, ended with his advice not to get desperate and marry. It had been given with a laugh, but she knew that his matrimonial experiment had not been satisfactory. She doubted if hers would be if she married George because she thought she should, rather than because she wanted to.

Leaving Mr. Smith, she again went to look over that salvation of the jobless, the help wanted columns of the papers. She found an advertisement of the United Hotel Supply Company for a secretary. The ad was to be answered by letter. It also specified that full particulars must be given in the first letter and samples of typewriting and penmanship submitted.

Betty answered the ad to the best of her ability, and sent with her application the letter of recommendation from Mr. Smith. She had little hope of securing the position, but was in doubt whether to enclose the letter, lest it be lost, but finally did so, requesting that it be returned to her immediately if her application was not considered.

She tried for another place the same afternoon, but the wages were so low she would not consider the position. The next morning the postman brought her a letter from the Hotel Supply Company, asking her to call at their offices at thirty-third. She was one of three applicants they had asked to call.

She was elated at the prospect, for she had not expected it. At the office at the proper time she was told to see the chief clerk. He was a business-like man who asked her many questions, none of which, however, developed her dancing career. He had called Mr. Smith, and that was what had influenced him to send for her.

He picked up a newspaper from his desk and dictated an editorial, then asked her to transcribe it. He seemed satisfied with her work; he told her he wanted a secretary for the vice president. Before he signed her to this work he wanted to try her out first. As his secretary was now acting as secretary to the vice president, he would do better able to tell if she would do it. Her salary would depend entirely on her. The company was very particular about their employees, and wanted only those willing to stay. Advancement was sure.

"I am very anxious for the position," explained Betty. "It is exactly what I am looking for. I care less about the salary to begin with than about the prospects for advancement. I will be glad to come in the morning and work for you all day so you may see that I am capable."

At home that night she looked up one of the books George had asked her to read when she first went to work at the restaurant. It was about the very things of which she read the night before. Not once did she stop him to ask a question.

During the morning a telephone call came for him while he was busy talking to a salesman. "Mr. Saunders is busy at the moment," said Betty. "Will you hold the wire just a moment?" Saunders signalled for her to hold him. "Just an instant now, and he will be here. Refrigerator display cases? Certainly we have them. We will send a man to give you estimates. They not only mean a great saving on ice, but they display cold food in summer time in such an attractive way that, several restaurants have told us, they more than make up their costs in added sales. Cantaloupes, salads, fruits and cold platters seem more appetizing when people see them right on the ice. No, these cases never sweat. I'll have Mr. Saunders send you a salesman. He can take you to one of the restaurants we have outfitted and show you just how they work. You are opening the first of the month? Come around and let us show you some other equipment too. Yes, we will have someone to see you within the hour. Our men are experts and, regardless of selling you, we would be glad to give you the benefit of our advice. No, I'm not a saleswoman! Thank you!"

"The devil you aren't!" laughed Saunders. She looked up to see both Saunders and the salesman laughing at her.

Mr. Smith had been like that, and his jollity had gotten them both into trouble.

When she told George about her new position at dinner that night he congratulated her on her good fortune. He preened himself a bit when she related the incident of the telephone call and the use she had made of the book he had loaned her.

"No knowledge acquired is ever wasted," he announced. "Information stored away in the back of the brain is subject to call at any time, and no one ever makes a mistake in acquiring it. It is almost inconceivable that a person could acquire knowledge of any character which would not some day be useful."

"Yes, George," said Betty, dutifully. But she was wondering what her new employer looked like.

"No knowledge acquired is ever wasted," he announced.

"Where did you get all that?" asked Saunders.

"Out of a book I read last night," replied Betty, timidly.

"That bird wanted to talk to Larkin, the salesman, not me!" said Saunders. "Go to the third floor on the right, tell him what you said, and give him the guy's name."

"Will he be angry?" asked Betty.

"You'll be lucky if he doesn't kiss you!" answered the salesman.

Betty found Mr. Larkin and explained about the call. She was only trying to hold the customer till Mr. Saunders could talk to him. She told him the arguments she had used and what the man had said.

"Who are you?" asked Mr. Larkin, without removing the cigar from his mouth.

"I am on trial as a stenographer for the vice president. I'm working in Mr. Saunders' office today."

"I'll go back with you," said "Say, does Andy get this young lady?" he demanded of Saunders.

"Not if I can get her away from him," returned Saunders.

"How much to boot do you want for her?" I'll give you those two dumb bells you sent me."

"You get back into your own hole and let me alone! I employ and assign the help here." They seemed to be quarreling.

"Oh well, she won't live long, anyway. She thinks. No woman can do that long at a time and survive." He went out chewing his cigar fiercely.

Betty returned to her work without comment. Saunders resumed his interview with the salesman, but when he was gone he turned in his chair and said: "Miss Brown, that was good work. It is very difficult to find girls who are interested in anything but dancing and the movies.

MEXICO IS TAUGHT VALUE OF AVIATION BY PRESENT REVOLT

MONTEREY, N. L., Mexico, Mar. 28.—Commercial aviation probably will play a huge part in solving the difficult transportation problem which confronts the development of Mexico.

This is the belief army engineers and business leaders of this romantic yet undeveloped country expressed in this correspondent during informal discussions of problems confronting the advancement of Mexico. The vast importance of a widespread rapid transportation system was emphasized during the last revolution in this country.

Many of the severe engagements of the revolution would have been short lived had there been facilities available for quickly moving troops to rebel strongholds. At present the railroad lines, which wind around the mountainous regions thus lengthening journeys from point to point, are the only means for moving soldiers and fighting equipment.

Planes Save Bridges

It is easy for retreating rebels, or bandit gangs as the case may be, to tear up railway tracks or dynamite bridges and retard the progress of federal troops. It sometimes requires four days to transport troop trains 150 miles because retreating combatants have torn up the rails to retard their pursuers.

Had there been a highway system across the deserts and mountains, troops could have been moved rapidly to the front by motor trucks. Had there been landing fields available combat planes could have prevented the dynamiting of railway bridges and dispersed rebels with bomb attacks.

Construction of a national highway system and a more connected railway system will entail huge expense and many years of labor, because of the rugged nature of the country.

Widespread development of commercial aviation can be made at less expense and at the same time provide Mexico with the most modern means of communication.

"Transportation and education are the greatest needs of our country," said Lieutenant Cristobal Garcia, attached to the person at staff of General Juan Almazan, Mexico's most popular general.

"Development of the vast sources of our country depend largely upon the extent of development of these two things. You have seen the ruggedness of the country which makes highway and railway construction tedious and expensive."

"Even in the mountain regions there are many mesas where emergency landing fields could be made at small expense."

To Study Here

Lieutenant Garcia plans to study aviation in the United States. He said many young officers in the Mexican army hope to become flyers.

The flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh from Washington, D. C., to Mexico City aroused widespread interest in aviation in this country. Today many Mexican youths have the desire to become flyers. Even the Yaqui Indians in the army are interested in planes, which they insist upon calling "pigeons."

Recently this correspondent was guest of J. S. Joffre, youthful Mexican president of the Inter-American Transportes de Aeron, on a flight in the first cabin plane his firm has purchased for commercial flying in Mexico. The plane was a six passenger Knott biplane, built especially for flying in the higher altitudes of Mexico.

Have No Fear

"I do not believe there is the fear of airplane rides in Mexico that there is in the United States," Joffre said. "We will have five of these planes in operation on regulated air lines before mid-summer."

Joffre's firm already owns airports at fifty-four Mexican cities and will acquire more as they are needed. Contracts for handling air mail and express already have been made with the government and large fruit shipping and mining companies which desire rapid transit. Joffre's air lines will make possible trips between some cities in two to three hours which now require fifteen to twenty hours.

"POOR AS CHURCH MOUSE" PROVES APT

FRESNO, Cal., March 28.—"Poor as a church mouse" never had a better illustration than the sale of a church building and all its contents at an auction ten miles east of here.

The church building, organ, books, pews, chairs, bibles and bible literature brought a total of $115 when the Locan Sunday School building went under the hammer.

The building was erected sixteen years ago through subscription of residents and members, many of whom have since moved to other communities.

READ THIS FIRST:

Betty Brown dances her way into the friendship of a fast and undesirable crowd, and out of the life of many nice people. An automobile accident results in a dislocated knee, ends her dancing career and her friendship with the fast crowd. George Harris, an old friend, stands by in time of trouble and gives her employment after she is out of the hospital. While there she studies stenography and typing and secures two positions, both of which she loses. Discouraged, she is almost ready to marry George out of gratitude.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIX

Betty's conversation with Mr. Smith, her former employer, ended with his advice not to get desperate and marry. It had been given with a laugh, but she knew that his matrimonial experiment had not been satisfactory. She doubted if hers would be if she married George because she thought she should, rather than because she wanted to.

Leaving Mr. Smith, she again went to look over that salvation of the jobless, the help wanted columns of the papers. She found an advertisement of the United Hotel Supply Company for a secretary. The ad was to be answered by letter, and no personal calls were allowed. It also specified that full particulars must be given in the first letter and samples of typing and penmanship submitted.

Betty answered the ad to the best of her ability, and sent with her application the letter of recommendation from Mr. Smith. She had little hope of securing the position, and was in doubt whether to enclose the letter, lest it be lost, but finally did so, requesting that it be returned to her immediately if her application was not considered.

She tried for another place the same afternoon, but the wages were so low she would not consider the position. The next morning the postman brought her a letter from the Hotel Supply company, asking her to call at their office at ten-thirty. She was one of three applicants they had asked to call.

She was elated at the prospect, for she had not expected it. At the office at the proper time she was told to see the chief clerk. He was a business-like man who asked her many questions, none of which, however, developed her dancing career. He had called Mr. Smith and that was what had influenced him to send for her.

He picked up a newspaper from his desk and dictated an editorial, then asked her to transcribe it. He seemed satisfied with her work; he told her he wanted a secretary for the vice president. Before he signed her to this work he wanted to try her out for herself. As his secretary was now acting as secretary to the vice president, he would do it for her. He would let her do it for a day. Her salary would depend entirely on her. The company was very particular about their employees, and wanted only those willing to stay. Advancement was sure.

"I am very anxious for the position," explained Betty. "It is exactly what I am looking for. I care less about the salary to begin with than about the prospects for advancement. I will be glad to come in the morning and work for you all day so you may see that I am capable."

At home that night she looked up one of the books George had asked her to read when she first went to work at the restaurant. It had to do with equipment and furnishings of a restaurant. Betty thought it might have some bearing on this business.

The following morning she took dictation from the chief clerk. It was about the very things of which she read the night before. Not once did she stop him to ask a question. During the morning a telephone call came for him while he was busy talking to a salesman. "Mr. Saunders is busy at the moment," said Betty. "Will you hold the wire just a moment?" Saunders signalled for her to hold him. "Just an instant now, and he will be here. Refrigerator display cases? Certainly we have them. We will send a man to give you estimates. They not only mean a great saving on ice, but they display cold food in summer time in such an attractive way that, several restaurants have told us, they more than make up their costs in added sales. Cantaloupes, salads, fruits and cold platters seem more appetizing when people see them right on the ice. No, these cases never sweat. I have Mr. Saunders send you, a salesman. He can take you to one of the restaurants we have out-fitted and show you just how they work. You are opening the first of the month? Come around and let us show you some other equipment, too. Yes, we will have someone to see you within the hour. Our men are experts and, regardless of selling you, we would be glad to give you the benefit of our advice. No, I'm not a salesman. Thank you!"

"The devil you aren't!" laughed Saunders. She looked up to see both Saunders and the salesman laughing at her.

"No knowledge acquired is ever wasted," he announced.

"Where did you get all that dope?" asked Saunders.

"Out of a book I read last night," replied Betty, timidly.

"That bird wanted to talk to Larkin, the salesman, not me!" said Saunders. "Go to the third floor on the right, tell him what you said, and give him the guy's name."

"Will he be angry?" asked Betty.

"You'll be lucky if he doesn't kiss you!" answered the salesman.

Betty found Mr. Larkin and explained about the call. She was only trying to hold the customer till Mr. Saunders could talk to him. She told him the arguments she had used and what the man had said.

"Who are you?" asked Mr. Larkin, without removing the cigar from his mouth.

"I am on trial as a stenographer for the vice president. I'm working in Mr. Saunders' office today."

"I'll go back with you," he said. "Say, does Andy get this young lady?" he demanded of Saunders.

"Not if I can get her away from him," returned Saunders.

"How much to boot do you want for her?" he asked Betty.

"You get back into your own hole and let me alone! I employ and assign the help here." They seemed to be quarreling.

"Oh well, she won

The Theater

If Fox directors are right in their decision to make only sound movies under their new production program then a lot of picture folks, including hundreds of small exhibitors, are going to be wrong.

The introduction of the talkie by Warner was greeted with some enthusiasm in the East, palled terribly in the mid-west, then sprang into popular favor with the first Jolson talkie, which seemed to put the new idea over.

But whether it is because the talkies are yet imperfect or whether it is due to a permanent vagary of taste, there are lots of folks who don't clap hands over the introducviewer breaks down and sheds a howl these one-act play groups, tear on the nearest lapel. Somewhere in the mid-west, then sprang into popular favor with the first Jolson talkie, which seemed to put the new idea over.

The Guild here has presented two very successful full-length plays. The one-act play, however, apparently has no place on the American stage except in vaudeville. And what is vaudeville without the acrobats?

As the time for the Clark County "wet" and "dry" election (Monday, March 29th) approaches the feeling in that county is becoming more intense.

Four of the young women operators at the Citizens Telephone Exchange are off duty today on account of illness.

Two ordinances in regard to sprinkling the city streets were introduced at the regular meeting of city council Friday night, and after being placed on the second reading were referred to the committee on ordinances.

This may be partly due to lack of proper stories, slipping in the sound sequences or a sense of the overdone, but there are still lots of customers who prefer music with their meals and silence with their movies. Witness the fact that in some cities exhibitors are advertising blatantly the fact that the pictures are silent and drawing patrons away from theaters equipped with expensive sound equipment.

Fox was not slow to get on the sound-movie bandwagon and appears to be taking a drastic step in its decision to drop the silents altogether. But it is of such decisions as these that giants of industry are made. Prior to the advent of sound-movies, the movie industry boasted the Big Three—Famous Players-Lasky (now Paramount Famous Lasky), Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and First National. Warner Brothers and William Fox were listed among the smaller fellows.

Came the sound wave and the dawn—this time of a new era. The Brothers Warner showed the way and Fox took up the innovation immediately. Other and more wary concerns were slow in entering the new field. Today the sound field boasts a Big Two—none other than Warners and Fox. There is even a report that Warners, once "small-fry," have purchased control of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. But someone will have to keep on making silents—for a while at least.

So the Little Theater Guild has decided to give three one-act plays as its next effort. Speaking from the standpoint of one who has nothing to say, says it badly and is completely out of order, this re-

YOUNG MAN NAMED
NAVAL AIR CHIEF;
INGALLS IS PILOT

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Aviation is a young man's game, they say, and Herbert Hoover has chosen a young man to run the navy air corps—Davis S. Ingalls.

30, Ohio lawyer and legislator, but fiercest of all.

Ingalls is the new air secretary of the Navy, and says he's tackling a job he's "crazy about." He has been driving his own plane for years, much as the average man drives an automobile.

He won citations from both his own country and Great Britain for extraordinary bravery in the war, before he was twenty. Then he came back to his home in Cleveland and served two terms in the state legislature. He left a lucrative law practice and a high position to take up his present job.

Brown haired, of small stature, and well knit frame, Ingalls presents a pleasing personality that hardly hints of the host of accomplishments he has crowded into the last decade. His war record reads like an adventurous novel.

No Policies

"Policy?" he said, answering an inquiry. "I'm just learning what it's all about here now. I want to find out what policies have gone before me, get acquainted, and learn what I can do to advance the service."

The new secretary has already tried out the navy's planes. Almost daily since taking office he has slipped across the river to the naval air depot to take a Vought "Corsair" pursuit plane up, chat with the men around the base, and poke delightfully around the familiar airplane equipment. He owns a fast plane of his own, which he left in Ohio.

The new chief plans to make good his word of "getting acquainted" on a broad scale this summer. His first inspection trip will embrace the countryside network of naval air depots, according to his present plans.

Ingalls regards the naval flying

service as the best in the world, and said its equipment is inferior to none. He has won the hearts of the personnel here with his congenial ways and his understanding of their problems. Their respect was won when he took his first ride in a navy plane and showed he was an expert flier.

With the new air secretary came his wife and three daughters, the oldest five years. They haven't become pilots yet, but have the same interest in airplanes as their young father.

The new chief plans to make good his word of "getting acquainted" on a broad scale this summer. His first inspection trip will embrace the countryside network of naval air depots, according to his present plans.

Ingalls regards the naval flying

service as the best in the world, and said its equipment is inferior to none. He has won the hearts of the personnel here with his congenial ways and his understanding of their problems. Their respect was won when he took his first ride in a navy plane and showed he was an expert flier.

With the new air secretary came his wife and three daughters, the oldest five years. They haven't become pilots yet, but have the same interest in airplanes as their young father.
